Summary of reasons
for classification:

The compact disc sound recording (CD) entitled 50 Cent: The Massacre is classified as: Objectionable except if the availability of the publication is restricted to persons who have attained the age of 16 years.

The CD comprises an album of 20 tracks by US rapper 50 Cent. The lyrics of many of the tracks include references to sex, crime and violence, in the style of gangsta rap. The unrestricted availability of the publication is likely to be injurious to the public good because of the potential for impressionable young listeners to adopt the aggressive attitudes espoused in the songs and possibly express these in violent behaviour. The fact that many of the lyrics are exaggerated and not intended to be taken at face value but rather fit into the "boasting" style of gangsta rap takes some maturity to discern, which children and younger teenagers may not possess.

This restriction interferes with the right to freedom of expression as set out in s14 of the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990. This limitation is demonstrably justified in a free and democratic society, given the likely injury to the public good if it was available to children and younger teenagers.
